Beckmans XV

Beckmans College of Design

Every debut is unique. Fifteen second-year students from Beckmans College of Design's Fashion Programme will show their debut collections during Fashion Week by Berns on Tuesday 2 February. The students have been free to experiment with different textile methods and to produce their own materials.

Nine students in their second year of Advertising and Graphic Design have concurrently explored how fashion is communicated, interpreting the fashion students' collections and temperaments. The results are presented in their concepts for films, photos, websites and printed material. The students have also worked on designing the show and live broadcasting.
