

Our commitment to sales is recognised at the 'Conversations That Win' 2017 APS conference

We are thrilled to announce that last week we were awarded the 'Investor in Sales' award by the Association of Professional Sales (APS), reaffirming the ethics and standards at the core of our sales activity.

"A proud moment for the Neopost UK field sales community. CPD in sales is as relevant as it is in any other profession."

Chris Capon, Sales Director, Neopost Limited

We are one of many leading firms that work in partnership with APS, with it providing external validation for advanced sales methodologies and practices. The organisation works to ensure sales professionals are held accountable to the highest standards so they can deliver added value to their customers. By winning this award it has been recognised that we are absolutely committed to achieving those standards.

We pride ourselves on the exceptional quality of our leading communication solutions; our commitment to delivering outstanding customer service; our distinctive methodology; and global footprint.

It is always nice to have our hard work and efforts acknowledged, especially by an organisation as prestigious and well respected as the APS.

To find out more about our range of communication solutions, visit <https://www.neopost.co.uk>